SCENE. Street.

Enter MR. BAILEY and RASTUS, from opposite directions, singing some popular song.

Mr. Bailey. Say, Rastus, I understand you attended the banquet the other night? Did you enjoy yourself? Did you take well?

Rastus. You bet I did! I got three spoons, four napkin rings and a sugar bowl. I would have swiped more if I'd had the chance. But say, by the way, does your sister use face powder?

Mr. B. She uses a little powder, I think.

Rastus. A little? She puts it on so thick that she ought to join the plasterers union. Oh, what a face she has and wrinkles! Ugh! they are good—good for the flies to hide in.

Mr. B. I hope you will not criticise my sister's features, Rastus. Her feet! Oh—(laughs) she'd be awful tall if there wasn't so much of her on the ground. Feet! Oh, they are like a couple of trunks. I guess she must leave her feet out side of the room when she retires at night, doesn't she?

Mr. B. You wouldn't believe she wears number two's?

Rastus. You mean twenty-two's?

Mr. B. Now, there's a brave girl. Let me relate an incident: The other night a burglar entered the house and began, dark lantern in hand, to search—

Rastus. For feet? Why, he couldn't help falling over them.

Mr. B. (annoyed) No, no! While the burglar was

4 THE BRAVERY OF MR. BAILEY'S SISTER.

searching, my sister heard him.

Rastus. He stepped on her feet, and next day she felt it.

Mr. B. Oh, listen! She heard the burglar—what did she do?

Rastus. Stepped on him and he died.

Mr. B. No, she didn't scream nor betray timidity, but ran out—

Rastus. With those feet?

Mr. B. (angry) Yes, yes!

Rastus. I don't see how she could run. Maybe somebody carried her feet in a wheelbarrow and she followed them.

Mr. B. No! I tell you I repeat, she ran—

Rastus. And tumbled over them.

Mr. B. No, sir! She ran to the corner and found a policeman—

Rastus. Fast asleep on her feet.

Mr. B. (very angry) No!

Rastus. Then he was inside of one of her shoes?

Mr. B. No! she found the policeman, brought him back to the house—

Rastus. And he arrested her feet!

Mr. B. (angry) Shut up!

Rastus. Shut up yourself! They weren't your feet, were they?

Mr. B. (excited) The policeman came to the house and arrested the burglar. That's what I call bravery!

Rastus. Get out! any girl in this town could do that.

Mr. B. Certainly.

Rastus. But she'd never get the chance.

Mr. B. Why not?

Rastus. She couldn't find a policeman.

Mr. B. It's strange, bravery seems to run in our family!

Rastus. I see you are wearing a lot of medals on your coat. You're not a Sousa or a hero from Manilla, are you?

Mr. B. No, sir! but I am a famous life saver.

Rastus. A life saver?

Mr. B. If you have not heard the story, I'll tell you. I chanced to be down to the sea-shore last summer—

Rastus. Sneaked down, did you, in a freight car?

Mr. B. (annoyed) Oh, no! As I said before, I chanced to be there, and while strolling on the beach, I saw a yachting party quite a distance out. Suddenly a treacherous squall swept in from the sea. The yacht was instantly capsized. I heard a woman scream as the vessel careened and they were cast into the sea. What did I do?

Rastus. You stole the boat.

Mr. B. (rexed) Nonsense! I instantly plunged into the water, swam out with the over hand stroke, for which I am famous, and reached one of the ladies and brought her safe to shore. I plunged in again and swam out once more.

Rastus. With the same underhand stroke that you touch with?

Mr. B. (not noticing him) I swam thus—(illustrates the motion and becomes excited and dramatic) I reached another lady and brought her safe to the beach. Then sir, I plunged in again—(imitates swimming as before) swam out to what I supposed was another drowning woman, I reached out and grasped—what? a lady's switch! But I brought it ashore and presented it to the woman who had lost it.

Rastus. And you call yourself a life saver? You're not a hero nor a life saver.

Mr. B. What am I?

Rastus. You're a hair restorer.

(close in with some popular song)

CURTAIN.

Signing an Actor.

A Specialty Sketch in 1 act, by Len Ware, author of "Little Goldie," "My Pard," etc., for 1 male, 1 female character. Singing and dancing can be introduced if desired. Time, 20 minutes.

My Mother-in-law;

or, Chopsticks and Spikins. Farce in 1 act, by Paul Merritt; 2 male, 4 female characters. A roaring farce, suitable for amateur companies. Just the farce to put on to make an audience go home in a good humor. The trouble of Chopsticks and the nagging of a mother-in-law will keep an audience in an uproar.

Mrs. Willis' Will.

A Comic Drama in 1 act; 5 female characters. Scene, rustic interior, very easy. Costumes, every day and eccentric. This piece has an excellent plot, and is very funny. Few plays, for female characters only, are as satisfactory in performance.

Bridget Branigans' Trouble's; or, The Masquerade Ball. Irish farce in 1 act; 2 male, 2 female characters. A lively little farce, suitable for an after piece.

Mike Donovan's Courtship.

Comedietta in 2 acts; 1 male, 3 female characters. Time, 15 minutes. Scene, plain rooms. One darky female. Mike enlists in the army for three months, on his return he finds his sweetheart Hattie, engaged to another man. Under the guise of a gipsy fortune teller, he works on her feelings until he regains her favor. A first-rate piece for a "chink" in a program.

Nobody's Son;

or, All Expenses. A negro farce in 1 act, for 2 male characters. Time, 10 minutes. Artemus Buz is a manager, and Jemius Fluticus applies for a situation in his company. Very funny.

London Assurance.

Comedy in 5 acts, by Dion Boucicault; 9 male, 3 female characters. Time about 2½ hours. Scenes, handsome interiors and lawn. "Assurance" is well represented in several of the characters, for surely there was never a more "cheeky" individual than Dazzle, or a more impertinent one than Meddle. Lady Gay Spanker is unique in her dashing character. Old Courtney is surpassed only by his son Charles, in their notions of what constitute a gentleman of the day; in short, every character is a study and good. It is a capital piece for strong clubs. Plenty of fun, nothing dragging. It sparkles from beginning to end.

The Mystic Charm;

or, A Wonderful Cure. A farce in 1 act. For female characters only. Four girls. Scene, an easy interior. Costumes, modern. A very lively and amusing little piece for parlor or stage performance.

As the number of nodes in the network increases, the number of nodes that are not in the network increases. This is because the number of nodes that are not in the network is proportional to the number of nodes that are in the network. This is a well-known result in network theory, and it is one of the reasons why networks are so interesting.
